

The GNR's tracking of Nutrition for Growth (N4G) commitments

GLOBAL NUTRITION REPORT

The Global Nutrition Report

Endorsers of the first (2013) Nutrition for Growth (N4G) Summit Compact called for a framework and a global report on nutrition.

In response, the Global Nutrition Report (GNR) was established as an accountability mechanism to track progress against global targets and commitments.

The leading independent assessment of the state of nutrition, the GNR:

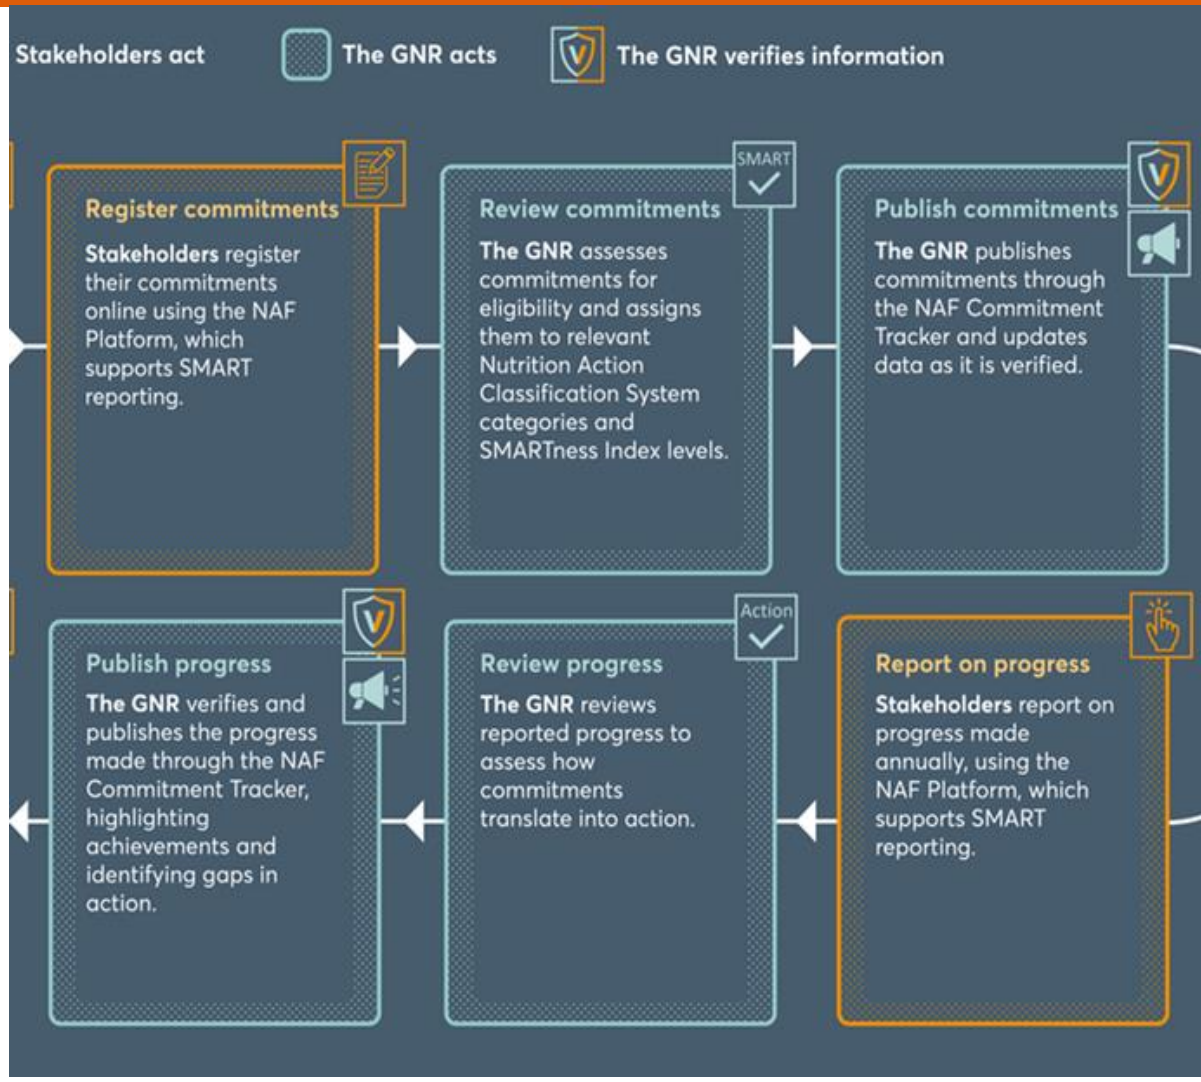
- Provides trusted, policy-relevant, independent evidence to inform policy, investment and action.
- Strengthens accountability across sectors, geographies and constituencies.

The GNR's Nutrition Accountability Framework (NAF) as a mechanism for strengthening transparency

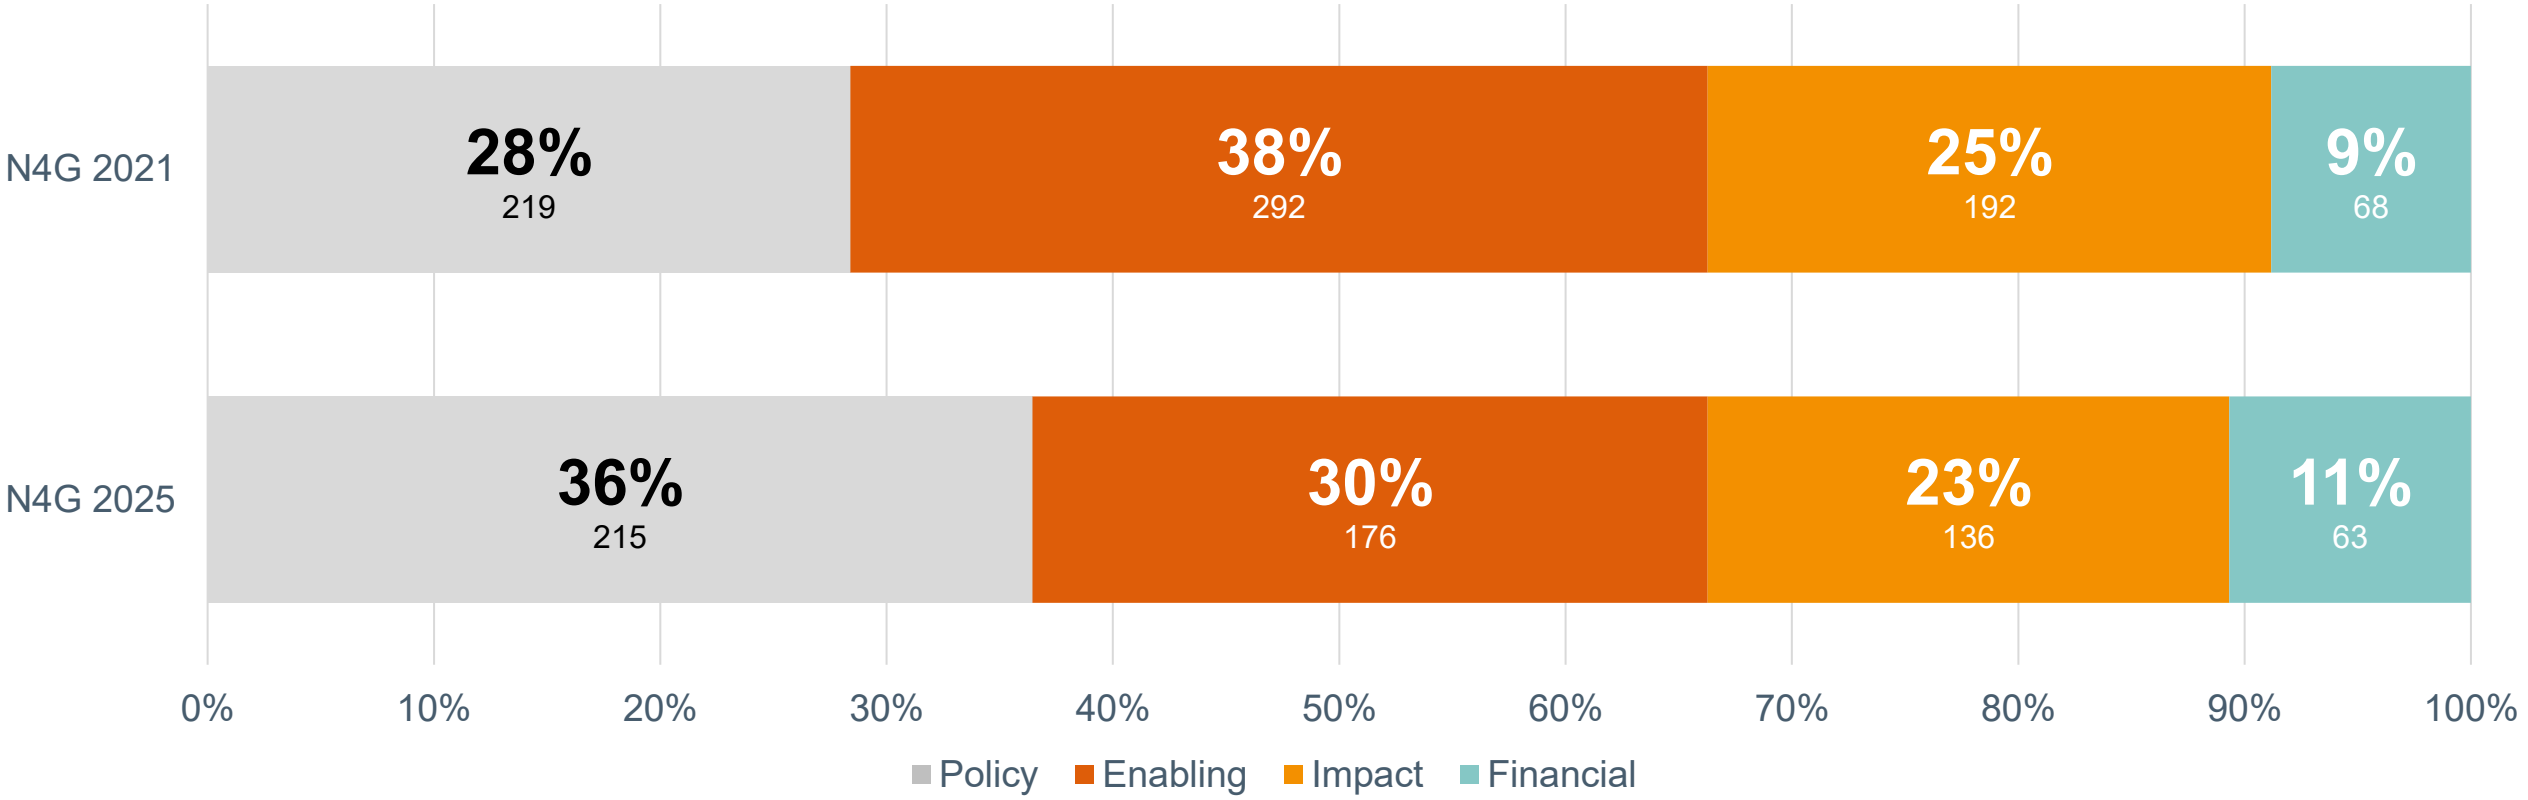
For N4G Tokyo 2021, the GNR launched the independent platform for registering and monitoring Measurable, Achievable, Relevant and Time-bound (SMART) nutrition commitments.

The N4G's official accountability mechanism, the NAF supports commitment-making, progress tracking and transparency across N4G Summits.

All 1,550 commitments (including from Tokyo and Paris) are publicly accessible in the filterable NAF Commitment Tracker and downloadable dataset.



Commitments registered in the NAF for N4G Summits



N4G Tokyo 2021

- 173 commitment-making entities
- 771 active commitments

N4G Paris 2025

- 180 commitment-making entities
- 590 active commitments

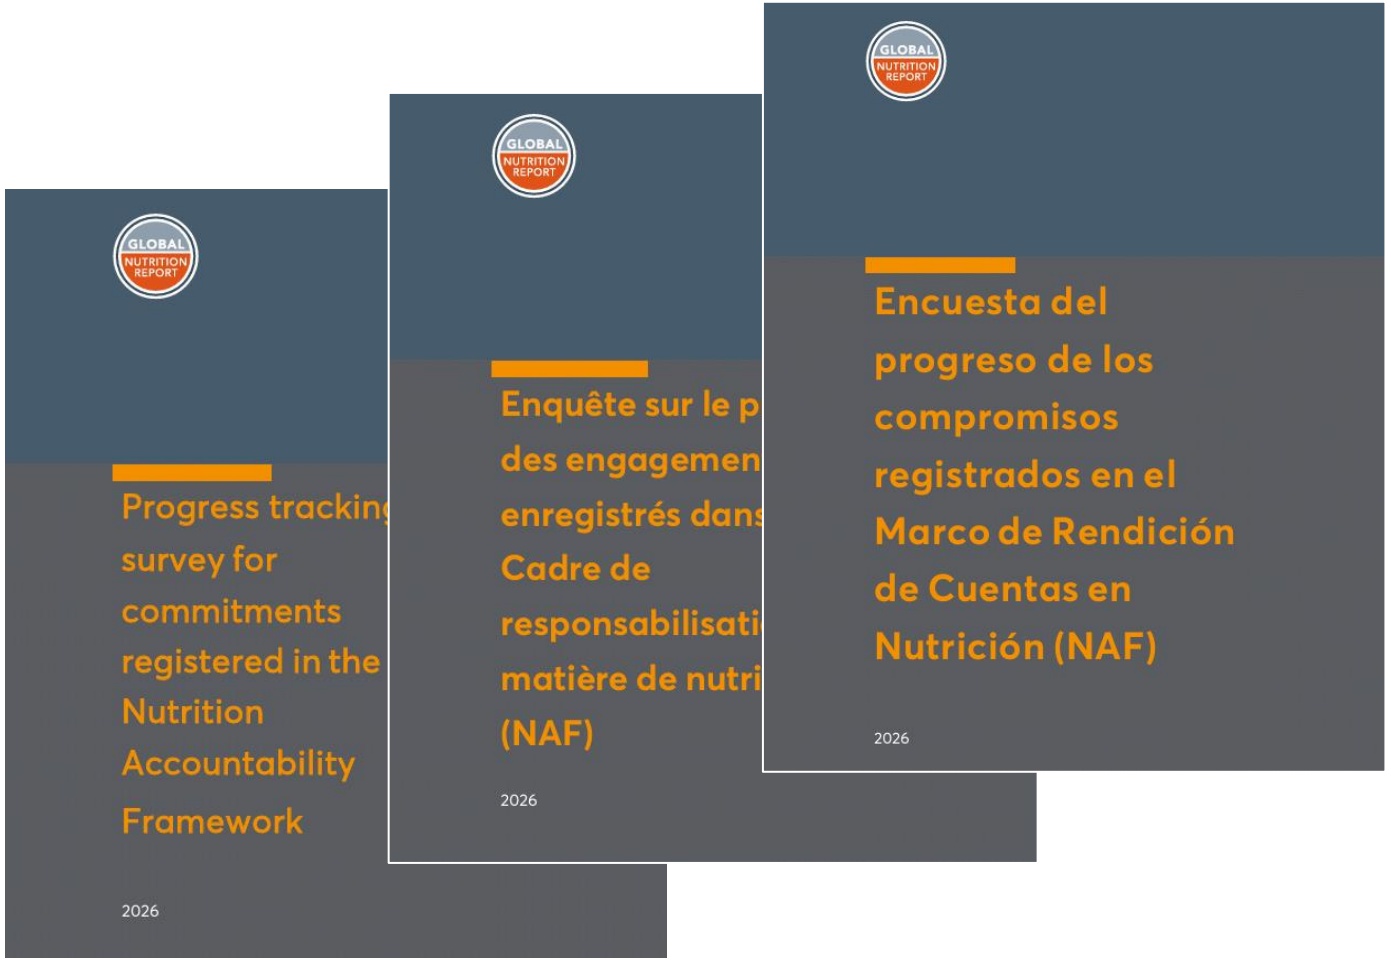
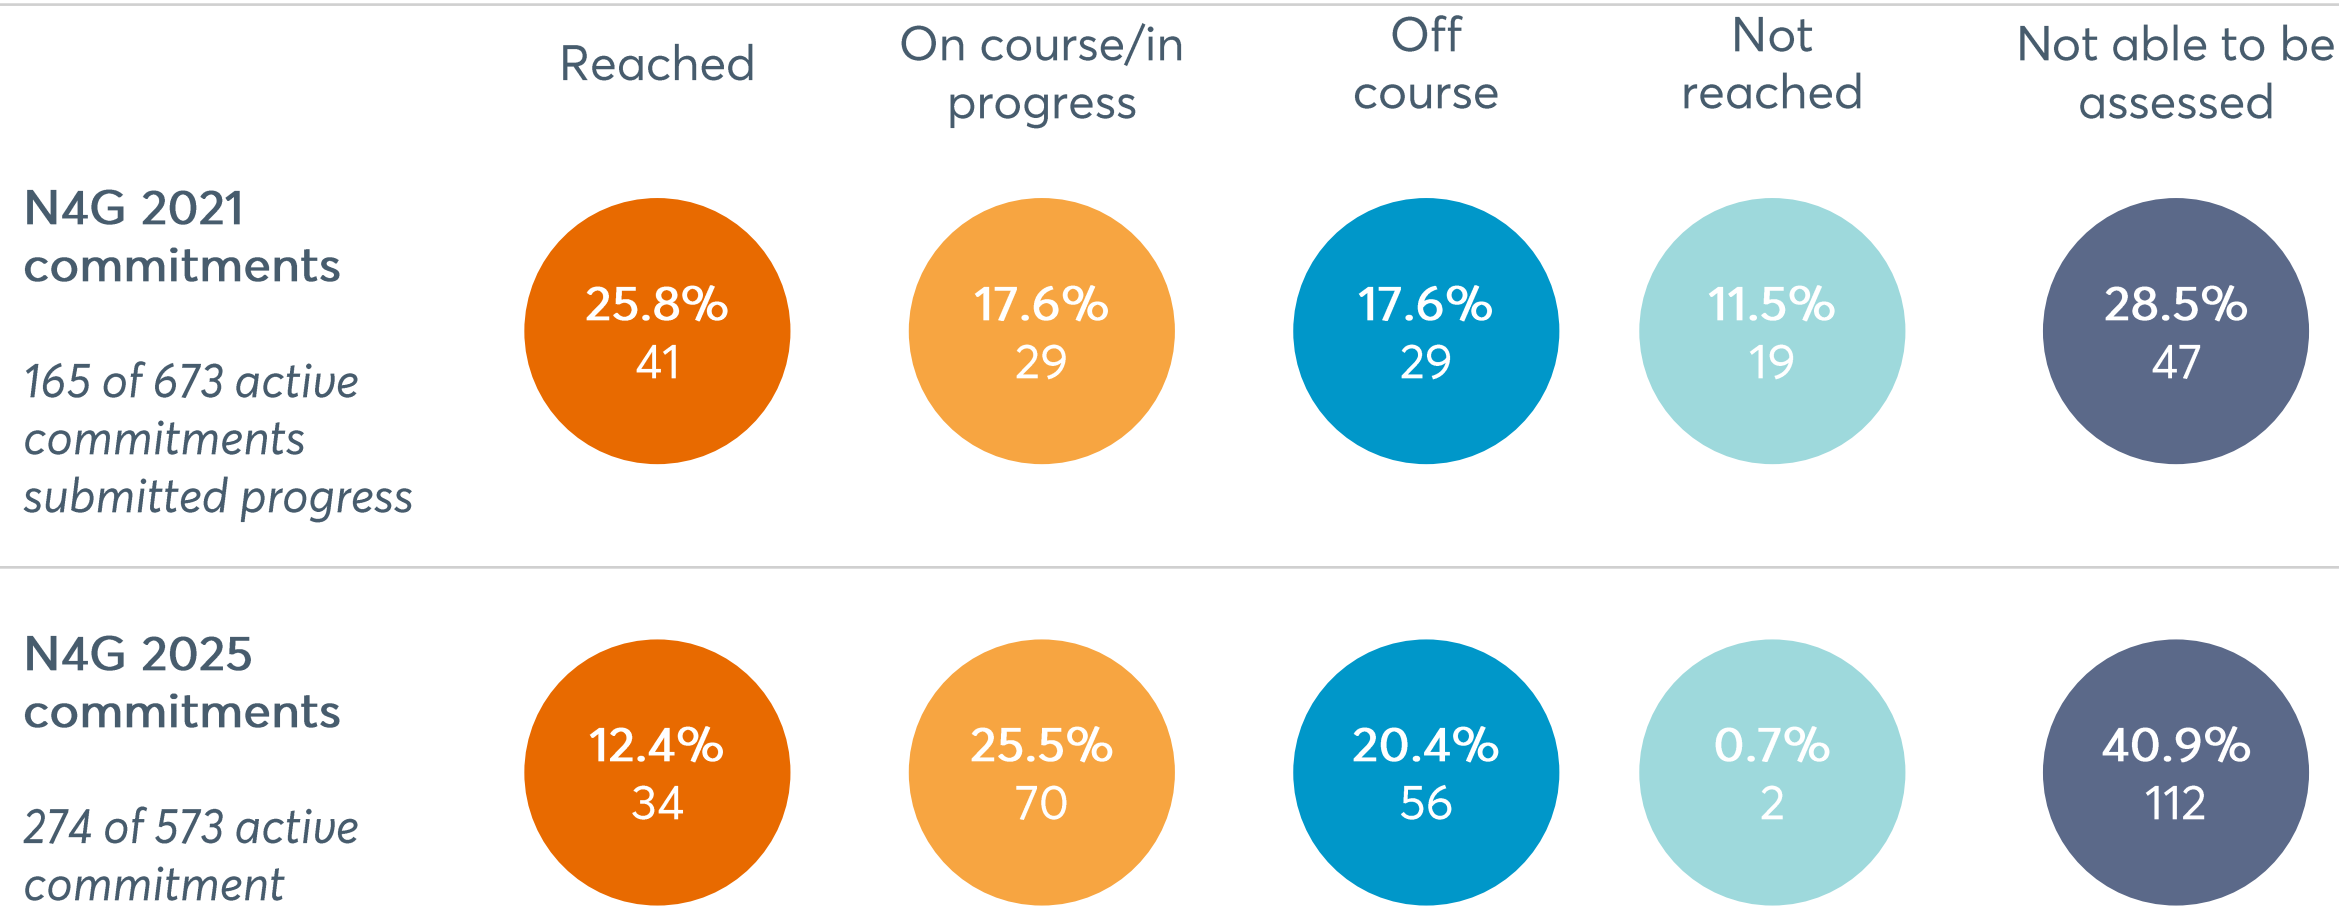
Beyond registering commitments, progress reporting is a key milestone for accountability

- Progress on commitments is tracked and publicly shared through the NAF.
- GNR assesses the reported progress and makes the progress status of each commitment publicly available.
- Commitment makers were again invited to report progress on 2021 and (for the first time) 2025 commitments in mid-2026.

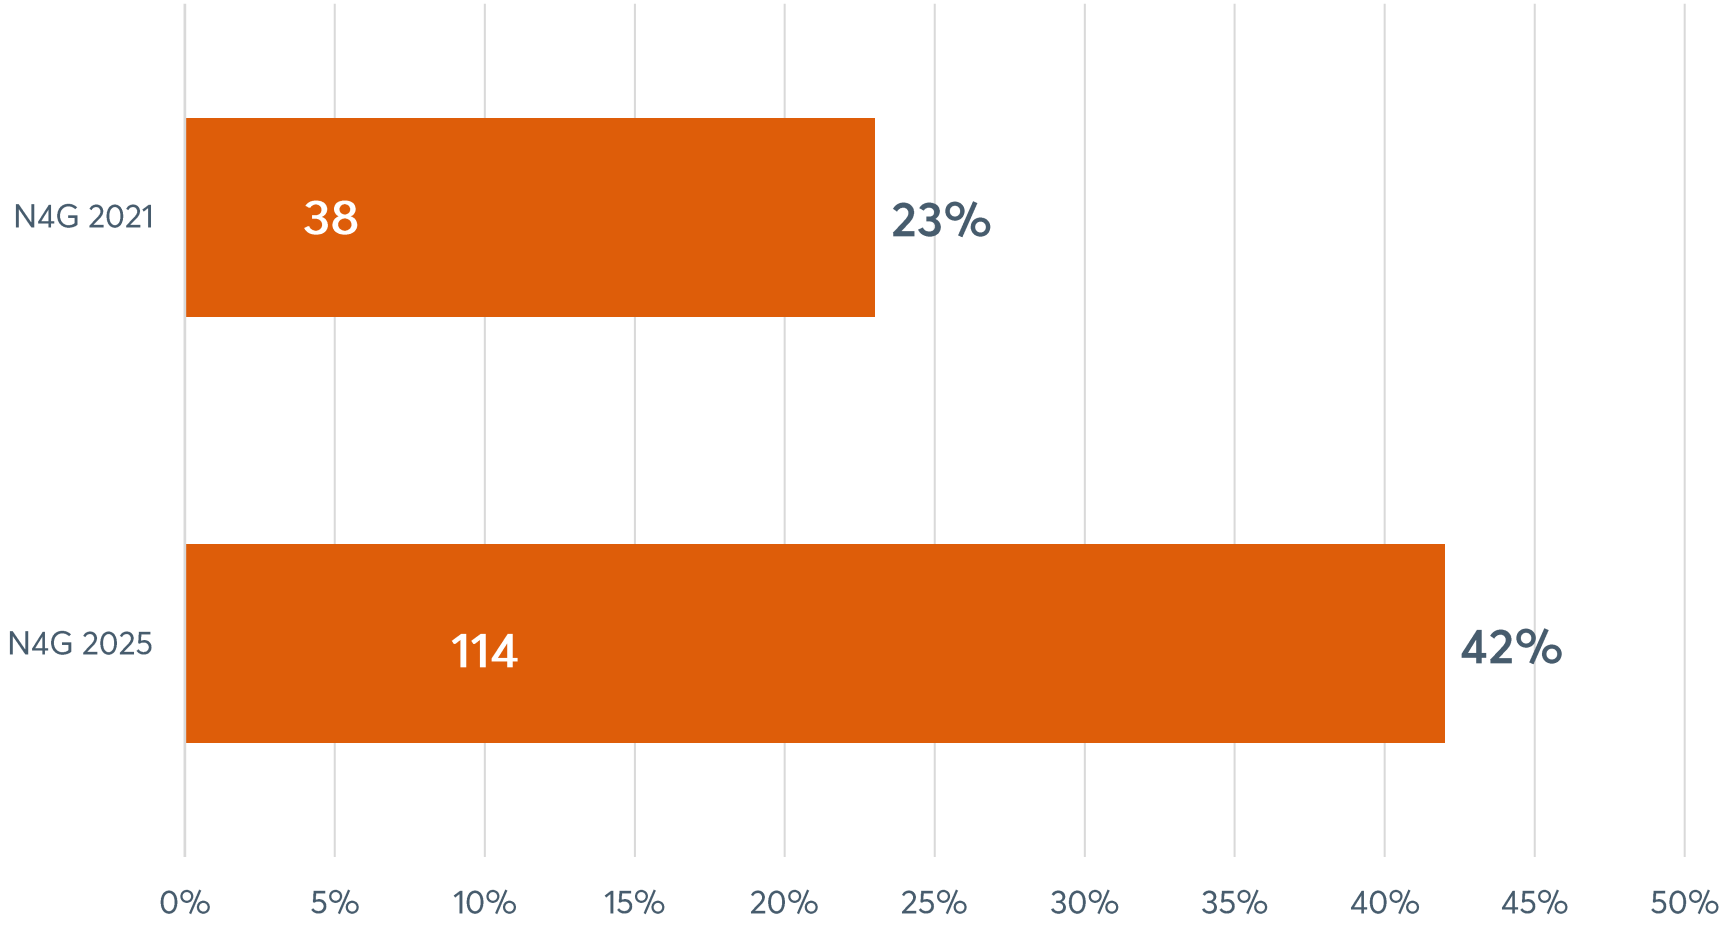


N4G commitment progress assessment from 2026 reporting



GNR's report on progress from the 2024 round of reporting:

Commitments affected by funding reductions



Percent of reported N4G commitments with mention of being impacted by reductions in humanitarian and development funding in preceding 12 months

Collectively across the 2021 and 2025 commitments, 35% of the 439 commitments reported on in 2026 indicate that funding shifts have impacted their ability to fulfil commitments.

Progress statuses from 2026 round (both Tokyo and Paris, as well as non-N4G commitments) will soon be available on the NAF Commitment Tracker, including as a downloadable dataset.
